Over the Horizon -
Health and Safety Evolving

IOSH London Metropolitan Branch
Evening Seminar & Wine Reception

Wednesday November 30th from 6pm – 8pm (Doors at 5.30pm)
at the
Victory Services Club

How to evolve our safety thinking and operationalise this into practice is the focus of this evening seminar.

Understanding the assumptions and drivers underpinning health and safety practice are critical to understanding flat lining incident rates, improvement project outcomes plus ongoing focus on worker engagement and behaviour.

Speakers will present some of the latest theories and practices in health and safety today to support innovation and evolution of our practice.

The seminar will also host the award for best IOSH PIPER (Partnership for Innovative Practitioner Engagement in Research) Research Project 2016 that successfully supported an organisation in their health and safety programme. The winner will also present their project during the evening and the new programme for 2017 will be announced.

Speakers
- John Green, HSEQ Director - European Hub at Laing O'Rourke
- Maeve O'Loughlin, Senior Lecturer , Middlesex University
- Dr Shaun Lundy, Academic Portfolio Leader, University of Greenwich
- Winner of IOSH PIPER Initiative Best Research Project 2016

Come to network and hear about innovative, novel and evolving thinking in health and safety to evolve your practice and drive improvement
