Exploring the synergies and differences between the offshore oil and gas and offshore renewables sectors

IOSH Offshore Group event

16 November 2016

Sunderland AFC, Stadium of Light

The IOSH Offshore Group is pleased to announce its latest event, which is being run to bring together the offshore communities, primarily from the oil and gas and renewables sectors, to share best practice and learning opportunities.

At first glance the synergies between the sectors may be hard to visualise but common themes do exist. Both sectors operate sizeable marine assets, utilise aviation for personnel and equipment delivery and are required to undertake hazardous and complex operations in similar offshore environments.

Furthermore, both sectors face considerable cost pressures and are searching for innovative and safe solutions to enable businesses to be competitive. Although the renewables sector is young in comparison, proposed work in wind farm construction does mean that the sectors will find themselves working in much closer proximity.

What's in it for you?

With the expectation of combined operations, we are running this event to offer delegates an understanding of the challenges, solutions and potential cost saving opportunities available.

By attending, you will develop an appreciation for the issues both sectors face, as well as an understanding of the methods adopted to overcome them and the opportunity to identify ways to learn from other activities outside of your own sector of the offshore industry.

As with all IOSH events, any value gained from attending this event can also be recorded within your CPD portfolio.

Who should attend

This event is aimed at all health, safety and environment professionals and safety representatives working in:

- the offshore oil and gas sector
- the renewables sector
- service provision to the offshore and marine industries
